

EXECUTIVE HOME

••• Everyone needs a refuge.

The Technology of Safety and Convenience

Executive Home technology systems, once considered reserved for those who work with technology and gadget-heads, have now become an integral and necessary part of the ultimate home lifestyle. Automation and simplicity have replaced confusion and high maintenance. Enjoy the convenience of carefully located, expertly-programmed one-touch systems that control everything from lighting, to climate control, even preparing a meal and heating up the hot tub. Take comfort in the safety provided by comprehensive security systems that not only protect and record, but can easily be viewed, securely, over the Internet while you are away. And of course, there is entertainment - More than just the ultimate home theater, whole-home audio distribution systems and media centers serve up the best in music, TV, and movies.

▼ After a long day, coming home to your dream house is every person's desire. As you approach the driveway, your home automation system has already turned on the lights. As you enter the front door, your favorite satellite radio station is already playing throughout the house. The weather has been mild, so the automated climate-sensing shutters have opened to allow the evening light in. A family member's voice comes over the intercom welcoming you home. Press a button on the wall and your living room lights up and your favorite TV channel comes on. Why not entertain the family and guests in your custom-built home theater room? You sit, totally immersed in sight and sound, surrounded by family and friends, while a totally integrated security system, armed with motion sensors and infrared cameras, quietly stands guard. This is Paradise.
